Pilot dies in crash of Virgin Galactic rocket plane

October 31st 2014 By Stephen Clark

Virgin Galactic's SpaceShipTwo rocket plane crashed during a powered test flight over California's Mojave Desert on Friday, leaving one pilot dead and another seriously injured.

One of the spacecraft's two pilots died in the crash, and the other crewman was injured and transported to a local hospital, according to Stuart Witt, CEO of the Mojave Air and Space Port, where the flight originated.

Officials did not identify the people aboard SpaceShipTwo, but the pilots were employees of Scaled Composites, the company that built the rocket plane, according to Kevin Mickey, Scaled's president. "We are human, and it hurts," Witt said. "Our hearts, thoughts, prayers are absolutely with the families and the victims."

The anomaly apparently occurred after the space plane fired its rocket motor following a high-altitude drop from Virgin Galactic's WhiteKnightTwo mothership at 10:10 a.m. PDT (1:10 p.m. EDT; 1710 GMT).

Moments later, something went wrong and officials declared an emergency, Witt said. "Our primary thoughts at this moment are with the crew and family, and we're doing everything we can for them now," said George Whitesides, CEO of Virgin Galactic

Footage from television news helicopters in the area showed the desert floor littered with fragments of Spaceship Two.. Observers also reported spotting a parachute in the air.

"Space is hard, and today was a tough day," Whitesides said. "We are going to support the investigation as we figure out what happened today, and we're going to get through it. The future rests, in many ways, on hard days like this, but we believe we owe it to the folks who were flying these vehicles, as well as the folks who have been working so hard on them, to understand this and to move forward, which is

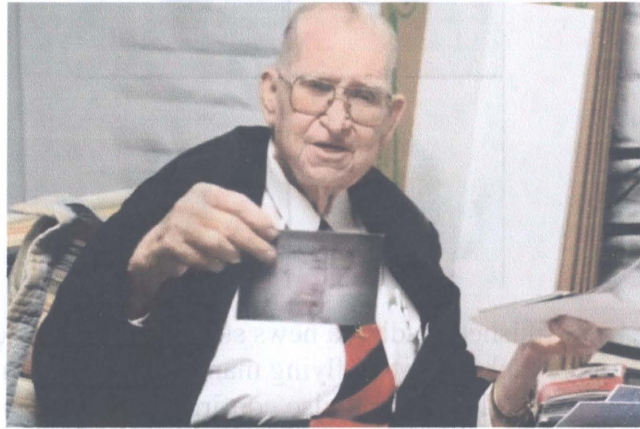

The Federal Aviation Administration said it is investigating the mishap. A team from the National Transportation Safety Board is expected to arrive in Mojave early Saturday to begin surveying the crash site. "On behalf of the entire NASA family, I offer our deepest condolences to the family and loved ones of the pilot lost in today's accident involving Virgin Galactic's SpaceShipTwo, and we are praying for a speedy recovery of the other pilot," NASA Administrator Charlie Bolden said in a statement. "While not a NASA mission, the pain of this tragedy will be felt by all the men and women who have devoted their lives to exploration. Space flight is incredibly difficult, and we commend the passion of all in the space community who take on risk to push the boundaries of human achievement."

The suborbital spacecraft was making its first powered flight since January and was testing a redesigned rocket motor. Richard Branson has stated that he will continue with the project.

Aliens are REAL reveals former Area 51 scientist who insists they're friendly and helping us!

Former Area 51 scientist Dr Boyd Bushman spoke about the aliens in a documentary shortly before his death

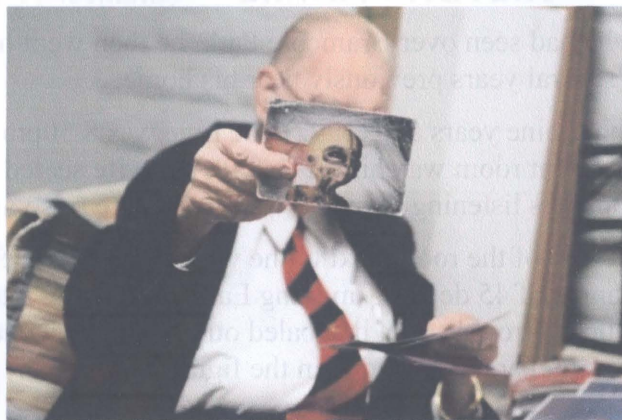

Dr Boyd Bushman - who used to work at Area 51 - opened up about his career in studying UFOs and alien life at the secretive base in a documentary filmed just before he died.*

"With respect to the alien craft, we have American citizens who are working on UFOs 24 hours a day.

"We are trying to learn what to do."

The former senior scientist describes that the aliens we know of can be split into two groups.

"There are two groups of aliens," describes. "They divide them into two groups. It's like a cattle ranch.

"One group are wranglers, and the others are rustlers – the stealers of cattle. The ones that are wranglers are much more friendly, and have a better relationship with us."

He describes the aliens as five feet tall and says that "one or two of them are around 230 years old".

He goes on to reveal that 'at least 18 operate with our facility'.

While their eyes and noses are different from humans, Dr Boyd reveals that they still have five fingers and five toes but they are telepathic mind readers.

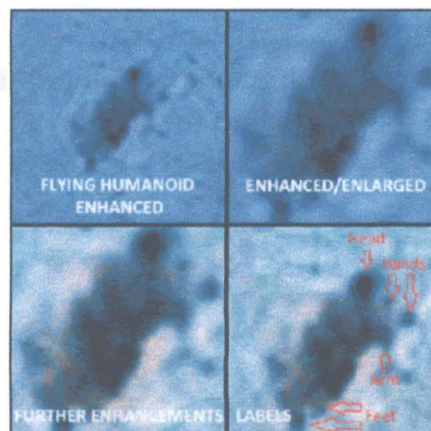

"They're able to use their own voice by telepathy to talk to you," he reveals.

He also added that the aliens were dressed in dungarees so they could be grabbed when they started to float.

*ED: The full DVD documentary will be shown at the next PRA meeting.

UK/England Flying Man

(published by the-mind-unleashed)

Newton Abbot Devon — I just finished reading a news story of aviation experts being stumped by a flying man. I managed to capture a photo of this flying man back on the 7th of September 2014 at 4:15 PM. I can confirm that this was no balloon. I can also confirm that this man had no jetpack or visible wings. I looked through my binoculars and I can tell you this man had a cape and no visible means of flight. I cannot explain this. I have had many flying humanoid sightings and my first sighting was of a Mothman Back in the summer of 1993. The Mothman I witnessed was wearing black boots with downward facing triangles on them and it had bat like wings and no visible signs of a head. I could hear a whooshing sound of the wings. After this sighting I have been encountering UFOs and other strange phenomenon on a daily basis of things that should not exist. Thanks to William Puckett, Director <http://www.UFOsnw.com>

From the PRA Files: 'THE FLYING DWARF' (Bramcote, Near Nottingham)

John' described lights that he had seen over Bramcote Park, he then went on to mention something very peculiar that had occurred several years previously near his home.

It was on a July evening about nine years ago (1992), the time was 8.50pm and it was a bright and breezy evening. I was in the front room watching TV, with my wife seated next to me. My daughter (21) was in the front bedroom upstairs listening to music with her fiancé (also aged 21/22).

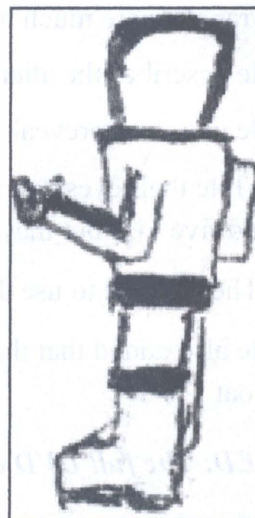

Our television was in the corner of the room next to the window, it was then that I saw an airborne figure coming down at an angle of 45 degrees, moving East to West i.e. into the wind. My first reaction was to think that it was a pilot in trouble, that had baled out! My wife shouted "What the hell is that?" Then I noticed that there was no parachute and then the figure (see sketch) began to 'hover' above the roof of the house opposite.

After it had begun to hover for about 15/20 seconds, two things happened. Firstly, a woman (in her 50's) who was walking along the pavement, looked up and saw the figure and immediately ran off down the road at some speed. Next, my daughter shouted downstairs "Mum, Dad, can you see that thing across the road?" All of us watched it for about another 15 seconds until it moved off Northwest at a speed about 2/3 mph. It moved horizontally in a very steady motion and was soon out of sight.

The figure was "Dwarf-like", very chunky and everything about it was dark green except for a semi-transparent dome covering its head. I observed that it had boots, gloves, a jacket, trousers/overalls. The figure appeared to have a twin cylinder back pack His arms were held out in front, as he seemed to be operating controls of some kind.

For some strange reason I was glad that we were not outside as I felt tat there was something distinctly menacing about that creature. I wondered why no-one else reported this sighting. Possibly too embarrassed or fear of ridicule.

Worldwide UFO Sightings (From Filers Files #45 2014)

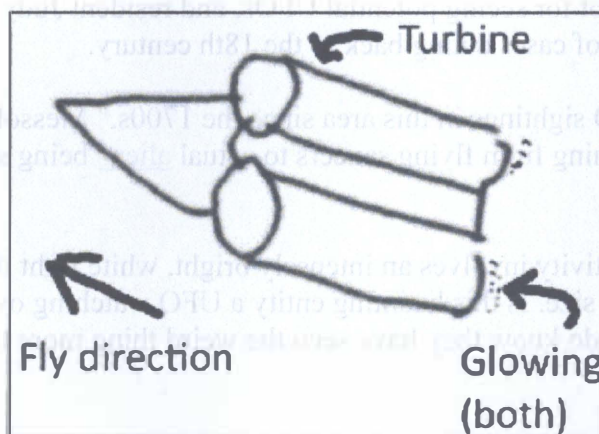

Australia Triangle and Cloud

I was sitting in the yard on September 25, 2014, observing the sky as there has been a few strange events occurring over the last few months that we have witnessed, but this is the first that we got photographs. This is the third time we saw it and there's been a couple of different ones since then. My family members had joined us nightly hoping they could witness the objects also. At around 10.30 pm the object appeared from the SE and is noticeably brighter than the stars and manoeuvres and travels at various speeds.

When looking through binoculars it looks spherical like and emits many different colors and appears to spin and turn. The object was olive/silver and would just fade out altogether and then reappear. We watched it for two hours through binoculars. My niece, nephew and our three children were very excited and were giving us a commentary every time they got the binoculars. We all attempted to take video footage with our phones, however they didn't take very good pictures at all let alone footage. My daughter got her Olympus Tough model tg-820 and stabilized it on my car roof and other surfaces during the event and took multiple amazing photos of this object. Thanks to MUFON CMS

Germany Turbine

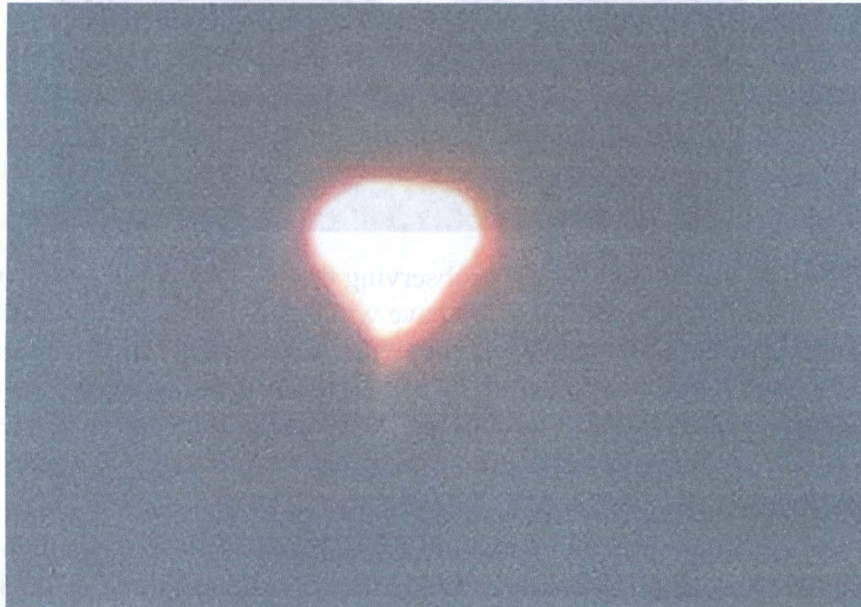

Jockgrim – My friend and I went out onto the balcony and spotted an object flying higher than a plane that flew completely different. It looked like two turbines without wings. The turbines at the rear end shone in blue / green. From the size and shape it looked like a "Podracer" from "Star Wars", only that the turbines are located next to the "cabin".

After about 40 seconds the lights were gone but you could still see the "turbines" for another 10 minutes as they flew away.

We had Internet problems with the router for the past two weeks and a reboot of the router solved the problem. Thanks to MUFON CMS

UFO sightings: Intense white light watches over valley, alien above highway (Chicago Top News Examiner :November 1st 2014)

An intense white light is the latest in UFO sightings being reported this week. A strange object emitting a bright glow is said to be watching over San Luis Valley; not only have dozens of witnesses confirmed the unidentified flying object, but local authorities say they have no idea what the luminescent aircraft may be. Mania News also reports this Friday, October 31, 2014, that a former Ultimate Fighting Championship titleholder recently came forward to say he witnessed what appeared to be a flying saucer being driven by an alien over a highway in New Mexico, and that UFOs are no joke to him anymore.

Before delving into welterweight Georges St. Pierre's UFO sighting this week, officials are first looking skyward in southern Colorado. Mysterious, intense bright lights are said to be emitted by unknown aircraft in the sky, and these objects appear to be watching over people who live in San Luis Valley.

The valley is known as a hotspot for seeing potential UFOs, and resident Judy Messolin says that there have been documented reports of cases dating back to the 18th century.

"They've had documented UFO sightings in this area since the 1700s," Messoline revealed. These UFO sightings have included everything from flying saucers to actual aliens being seen peering through some aircraft windows.

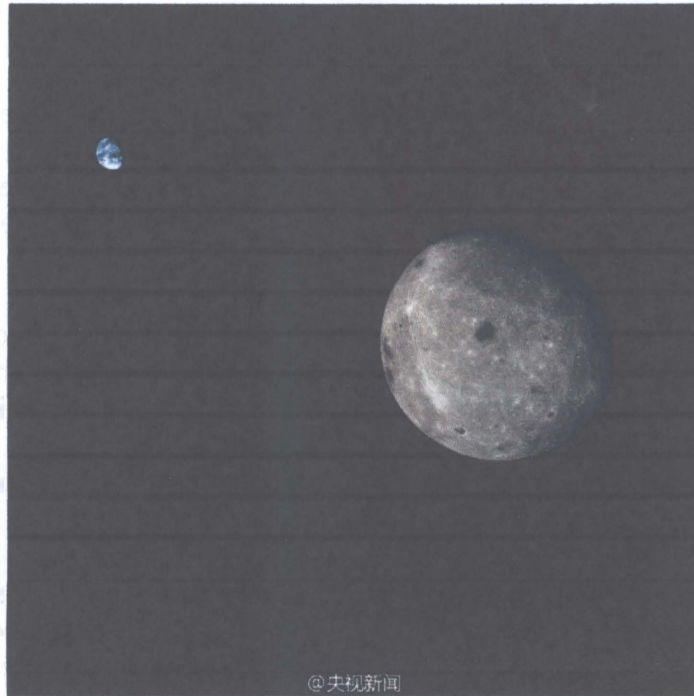

The latest issue of unknown activity involves an intensely bright, white light that encompasses a strange, rounded object of considerable size. Is this haunting entity a UFO watching over the valley? Witnesses cannot know for sure, but they do know they have seen the weird thing more than once in San Luis, Colorado.

The mysterious light is said to be hovering relatively low both day and night, and is causing such a stir that the whole region is talking about UFO sightings this month. Most interesting of all is that observers cannot determine just what this glowing aircraft is; it just appears to be "watching" over them, said one witness. The intense, bright radiance is said to be appear within the object for a number of minutes, zoom off into the west, and then circle around again into the eastern sky.

China's Lunar Test Spacecraft Takes Incredible Pictures of Earth and Moon Together

The Chinese lunar test mission Chang'e 5T1 has sent back some amazing and unique views of the Moon's far side, with the Earth joining in for a cameo in the image above. According to the crew at UnmannedSpaceflight.com the images were taken with the spacecraft's solar array monitoring camera.

The mission launched on October 23 and is taking an eight-day roundtrip flight around the Moon and is now journeying back to Earth. The mission is a test run for Chang'e-5, China's fourth lunar probe that aims to gather samples from the Moon's surface, currently set for 2017. Chang'e 5T1 will return to Earth on October 31.

UFOs in West Virginia: 10 witnesses, 4 low-flying UFOs, 3 big as football fields

(Examiner. com October 18 2014)

A UFO sighting in southern West Virginia has been reported that not only presents multiple witnesses of the objects in question but also the witnessing of multiple unidentified flying objects during the sighting. Open Minds reported Oct. 17 that ten men working at a coal plant in Marmet, West Virginia, saw the four flying objects as a collective. Three of the UFOs were massive, the size of football fields. They were all flying extremely low to the ground -- and deathly silent.

Originally reported on the Mutual UFO Network website, the actual sighting took place at 10 p.m. on October 12, 2014. It was quiet all around, according to the reporting witness. The plant had shut down. The guys had just finished some pipe repairs and were leaning against their vehicles.

One of the guys pointed at the sky. "What is that?" he asked. Everyone looked up. The first of what would be three huge flying objects was headed toward them.

"We all looked up and saw a triangle-shaped object outlined in white lights the size of a football field coming up the hollow from the southwest [Beckley, WV area]," the witness reported. "It might have been 300 to 500 feet above us. It was moving very slow and made no noise. We watched for about 3 or 4 minutes as it disappeared over the trees.

A few minutes later another one showed up behind it -- the same shape and size and no noise. Another one showed up after that, same as before.

"After these three went by a small object with lots of red flashing appeared at the end of the line formation. They were all headed northwest towards Charleston, WV."

The reporting witness said that all the guys were "amazed" that there was absolutely no sound, no noise whatsoever coming from the UFOs -- especially "as close as they were, and their sizes." And it all took place in the space of 15 minutes.

So what did the ten men see? Could it have been a case of group or mass hallucination as some will surely suggest? Or is there a reason UFOs -- whether manmade, alien, or faux -- were traveling between Beckley and Charleston, West Virginia in mid-October?

Two weeks prior to the Marmet UFO sighting, a couple in Elkins, West Virginia, reported a low-flying massive triangular-shaped UFO, according to International Business Times. Flat black, it blocked out the stars in its passage. It had three lights, a dim white one and two orange hourglass-shaped lights. The couple that filed the report with MUFON noted that the UFO had no distinguishing control features (like a canopy or windows).

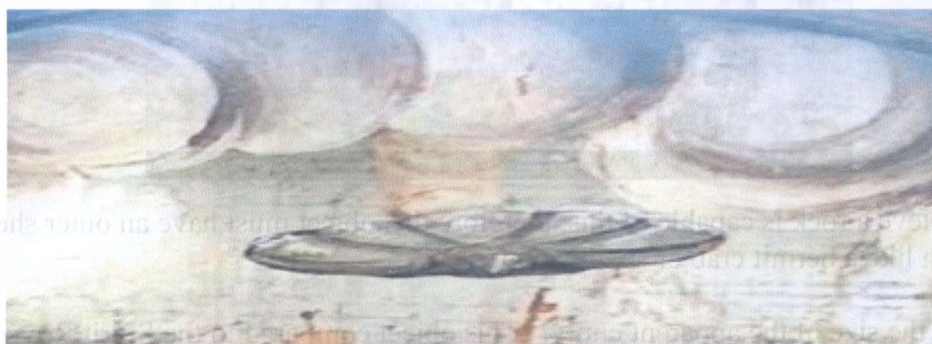

Ancient UFO Discovered On Old Monastery Painting

Contributed By N. Morgan

An interesting UFO like image has appeared in a painting in the Church of the Dominican Monastery in Romania.

The image was a painting on the wall of the 14th Century monastery also bore the inscription on the bottom in German, which states: Israel put your hope in the Lord.

This image could be more evidence of that extra-terrestrials have been visiting this planet for hundreds of years. The object, is similar to other disc-shaped UFOs seen in paintings* and coins, ranging from the 4th to the 17th century. Another odd thing about this image is the strange clouds surrounding the UFO like object.

Astronomer discovers animal life form on Mars from NASA images

UFO Sightings Daily is coordinated by Scott C. Waring, who is a UFO researcher and author who has become an honorary astronomer through his independent investigative research on anomalies in space and on planets like Mars. Mr. Waring had been affiliated with the United States Air Force at SAC base (USAF flight line). He currently owns an ESL School in Taiwan.

Mr. Waring discovered the animal life form while casually examining NASA video uncovered by investigative researchers studying Mars. "The life form moved from their original positions and were in different positions later in other photos." "There are three different photos and the rock (life form) moves in each one, however on the third it is gone altogether."

Mr. Waring describes the movements of the apparent entity. "There are three different photos and the rock (life form) moves in each one, however on the third it is gone altogether." Mr. Waring suggests the life form is some kind of Martian turtle, crab or snail-like entity with a rock-like shell.

"Now I do not believe a rock is capable of this, therefore this object must have an outer shell and it lives safely inside much like a hermit crab or snail would."

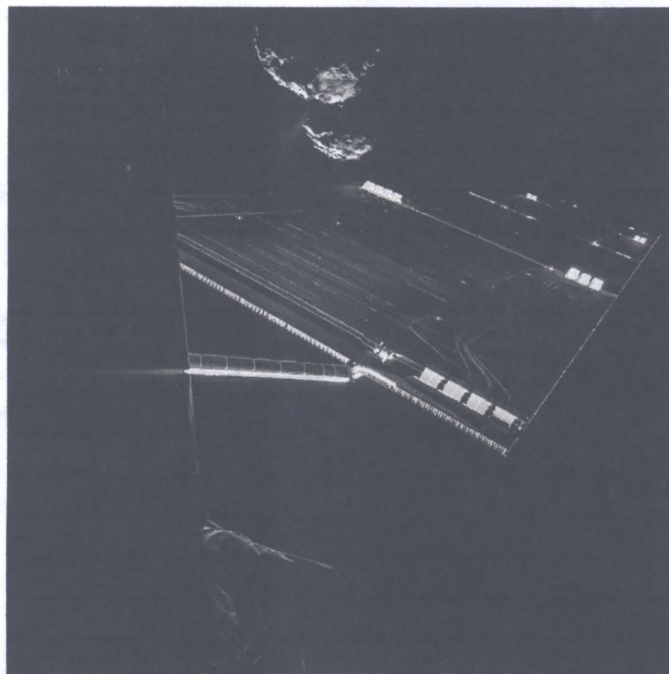

He also estimated the size of the apparent entity. "This object compared to the Spirit Rover would be about 1 foot tall. I Googled the photos and they are real. Let me quote Spock from Star Trek, "If you eliminate the impossible, whatever remains, however improbable, must be the truth."

On 12 March 2012, Mr. Waring had revealed a different apparent Extraterrestrial life form that was shown in NASA images to be crawling on the sand with "bunny-like ears" and tiny pinkish-coloured legs. [NASA photos attached] .

Astronomy Picture Of The Day

2014 October 16 Image Credit: ESA/Rosetta/Philae/CIVA

Rosetta's Selfie

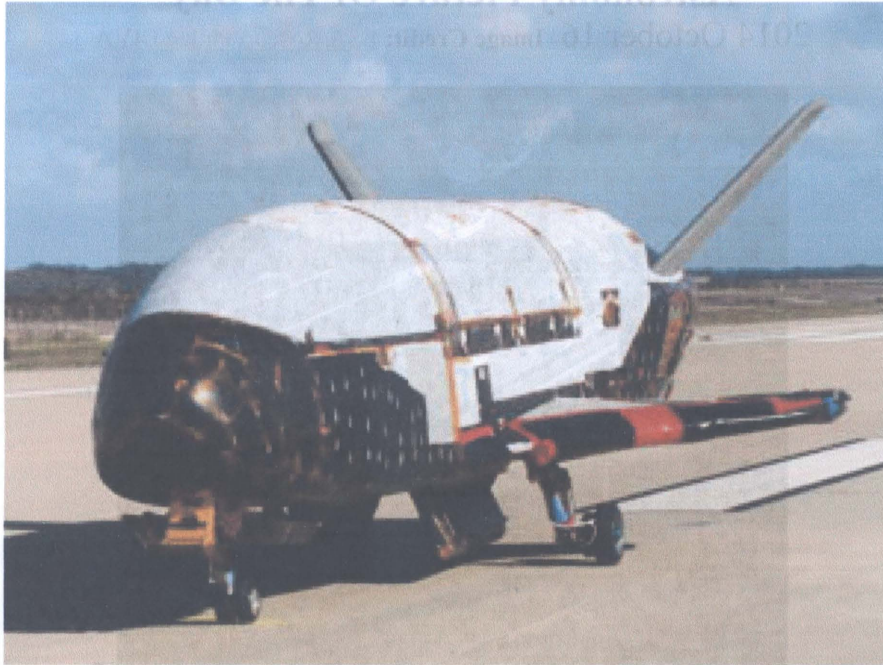

This latest image was taken by the CIVA imaging system on board Rosetta's lander Philae, on 7 October. It captures the side of the Rosetta spacecraft and one of its 14 metre-long solar arrays, with 67P/C-G in the background. Not only does the comet appear much larger than in last month's image, the active 'neck' region of 67P/C-G is now clearly visible, with streams of dust and gas extending away from the comet. The primary landing site, currently known as Site J, can also be seen on the smaller lobe of the comet.

Two images, one with a short exposure time, one with a longer one, were combined to capture the whole dynamic range of the scene, from the bright parts of the solar arrays to the dark comet and the dark insulation cladding the Rosetta spacecraft. CIVA, the Comet Infrared and Visible Analyser, is one of ten instruments on-board Philae. The CIVA-P part of the instrument comprises seven micro-cameras arranged around the top of the lander to take panorama images, while CIVA-M is a visible/infrared microscope imager/spectrometer that will study the composition, texture, and albedo of surface samples.

The 7 October selfie is the last image from Philae before the lander separates from Rosetta on 12 November. The next image will be taken by CIVA shortly after separation, when the lander will look back at the orbiter to bid it a final farewell. While the lander's ROLIS instrument will take images during the descent phase (see photo right). CIVA will be tasked with making a 360 degree panoramic image of the landing site, including a section in stereo, once safely on the surface of 67P/C-G. The images and data collected by Philae will provide important in situ information about this particular region on the comet, providing 'ground truth' data that can be used to complement the data collected for the whole comet.

Top Secret Air Force Shuttle X37B Returns from 2-Year Space Mission

X37B

A top-secret U.S. Air Force unmanned 'space plane' completed a classified mission lasting 674 days in orbit. The X-37B aircraft, one of two, is similar to a mini-spaceship, 1/5th the size of a space shuttle.

Once in orbit the plane unfurled solar panels to charge its batteries.

The plane landed at the air force's Vandenberg Airbase on the southern California's coast.

Experts have theorized that the mission might have had spying objectives and that it carried a payload of spy gear in its cargo bay.

There are also James Bond-sounding theories, such as the mission was to develop satellite-capturing capabilities to capture other countries satellites in-orbit.

An official statement by the air force said only that the mission was conducting "on-orbit experiments, risk reduction and operation-developments." Details of the programme as well as its budget and broader objectives have not been revealed.

The air force says that it will launch another X-37B mission, its fourth in total, next year from the air force's Cape Canaveral station.

The unmanned planes are able to re-enter the atmosphere and land independently, without human interaction.

It could also have been a shadow-mission to monitor China's space programme.

Earlier this year, the editor of 'Spaceflight' magazine claimed the spaceplane was spying on the Chinese space station, noting the orbit of the X-37B is close to that of the Tiangong. The theory got a lot of public attention, but Brian Weedon, a consultant with the Secure World Foundation, vigorously disputed it. Weedon, was a former Air Force officer who worked at Strategic Joint Space Operations Centre and he argues that the China spying theory ignores what is known as right ascension, a critical component of the spacecraft's orbit.

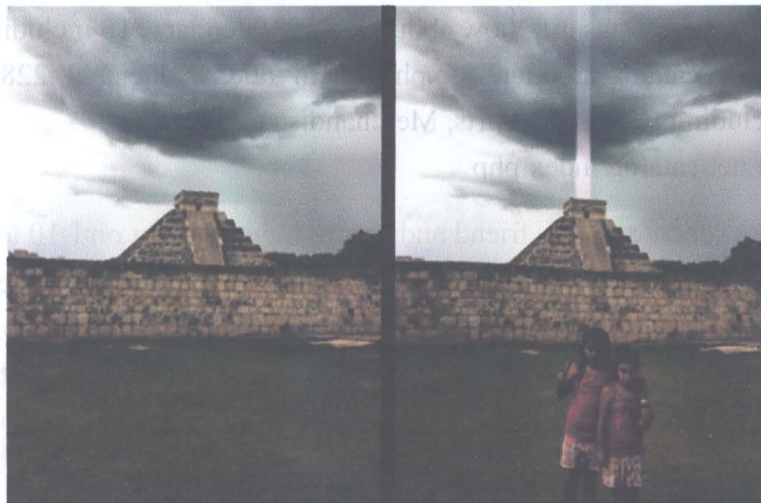

The orbit of the X-37B crosses that of the Chinese space station at only two different points—it's not as though the spaceplane could keep a constant eye on Tiangong. "Even though there may be a brief chance at some point for the X-37B to collect intelligence (on the Chinese space station), that certainly is not the main mission, or even something that is feasible" he says.

So, is all the secrecy really necessary? Steven Aftergood, a secrecy expert at the Federation of American Scientists, says "it's hard to know at the moment."

Ancient Pyramids Around World Emitting Energy Beams to Aliens?

Could it really be possible that our ancient ancestors were able to create or harness powerful energy beams or even weapons when they built or designed their pyramids? Amazingly some researchers are claiming that is indeed the case and what is even more mind-blowing is that these energy beams are still working today! What is the evidence, you ask? Check out what researchers have found below with these three ancient pyramid sites:

Kulkulkan Pyramid Chichen Itza, Mexico

This image was taken from a group of tourists in 2012 at the ancient site in Mexico. A group of researchers led by Richard Hoagland measured that there are indeed various un-natural energies that are being emitting from the top of the pyramid and seem to be amplified during electrical storms. The strongest of these energies come directly from underneath the ancient pyramid and then shoot straight through the top implying that some ancient device could very well be buried underneath it.

Bosnian Pyramids:

An international team of physicists have found the impossible according to researchers and scientists involved with the Bosnian Pyramids excavations.

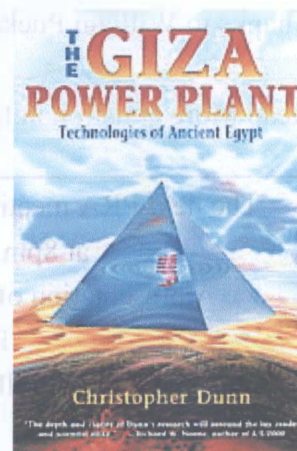

At the Pyramid of the Sun site, the team detected an energy beam coming directly through the top of the structure.

Measurements of the energy beam provided the following data:

Radius of beam – 4.5 metres

Frequency of beam – 28 KHZ

Beam is continuous and strength grows as it moves up and away from pyramid (which according to laws of physics is impossible).

ED: Although the publishers ('Before It's News) have taken the opportunity to show the pyramid beams as visible beams in their photographs, I recently watched (on TV) scientists investigating the 'beams' and they have discovered beams of energy emitted from several pyramids. However, although the beam can be traced on instruments it is not optically visible.

Arizona Triangle Avondale — My friend and I were traveling east on I-10 towards Phoenix when we noticed three objects to the south of us on October 10, 2014. They were white lights and moving around oddly. Then two of the objects went underneath the third object and the one object engulfed the other two. The shape then changed to a boomerang and there was a red glow to it as it just hovered there. We then had to go north and lost light of the object. The whole process took about three minutes. Chicago — I was driving home from a pumpkin farm with my husband and two boys' ages 2 and 9 on October 25, 2014, at 5:49 PM. My 9 year old told me to look at the sky and asked, "What was that darting all over?".

There were 5 bright long lights. They were in a way that didn't look like normal flight patterns. I grabbed my phone and tried getting pictures. I got two in one shot, and then I zoomed in. I don't know what we saw.
